Ice Breaker
Winter Speaker Series

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council invites the public to join the conversation around septic system health in Northern Michigan as part of its Ice Breaker Winter Speaker Series.

February and March presentations include the following:

Feb. 28, “Green Infrastructure,” presented by Watershed Council staff member Jennifer Buchanan. Learn how green infrastructure, such as rain gardens and green roofs, reduces and treats stormwater at its source.

March 26, “The Growing Threat of PFAS,” presented by Watershed Council staff member Jennifer McKay. Learn how PFAS (Per-and Polyfluoroalkyl substances) are used, how they threaten Great Lakes ecosystems, and how PFAS contamination is being addressed in Michigan.
